La Jolla Music Society President & CEO Todd Schultz Named Non-Profit Director of the Year by Corporate Directors Forum

San Diego, CA – Todd R. Schultz, President and CEO of La Jolla Music Society (LJMS), has been named Non-Profit Director of the Year by the Corporate Directors Forum at its annual Director of the Year Awards celebration on September 8, 2022.

Corporate Directors Forum is a San Diego-based nonprofit organization founded in 1991 with the purpose of helping directors, and those who support them, build more effective boards through continuous learning and peer-networking. Its annual awards pay tribute to top San Diego directors’ outstanding performance in the boardroom and behind the scenes. Honorees are nominated by their boardroom peers to recognize their extraordinary contributions in various award categories. Schultz was nominated by LJMS board member and longtime supporter Susan Hoehn.

“Todd has led La Jolla Music Society for nearly two years through the problems of the pandemic with boundless energy, wisdom, common sense and superb theatrical and musical knowledge,” said Steve Baum, Chair of the Board of Directors of the La Jolla Music Society, in presenting the award. “His background in performing arts, theatre and classical music has been invaluable to our business, Board, and programming.”

Recent past winners of the Corporate Governance Not-for-Profit award include Steve Bernstein, Jacobs & Cushman San Diego Food Bank; Jennie Brooks, SD Regional Economic Development Corp & UCSD Rady School of Management; Lori Moore, Sharp Healthcare;
